ACT: ART, CLIMATE, TRANSITION /Other Spaces program/ "Politics of the Commons" online lecture by Jovana Timotijević Moderator: Ivana Dragšić

November 29/2021, @ 19:00 CET

Faced with increasing inequalities and the inability of the neoliberal state to offer institutional mechanisms for the fulfilment of all people's social and economic rights, which the market simultaneously fails to provide, the pressure to find alternative modes of production, social relations and forms of organization is overwhelming. The challenges that the TINA ("There Is No Alternative") paradigm faces and the opening up of possibilities to imagine non-capitalist societies, as well as to avoid the capitalist appropriation of attempts to bring about change, are always present. At the same time, it is encouraging to see narratives and practices of resistance emerging, transforming and sustaining, and therein promising such possible change. Over the last decades, the concept of the commons has emerged as one of the potent political paradigms that has inspired different social actions and political mobilizations across the globe. The presentation will attempt to touch upon the theoretical concept of the commons – its genesis, proliferation, and various interpretations – as well as the practices that are based on the concept. We will investigate examples from the region, from various sectors – media, culture, housing, agriculture, etc, and hopefully develop insightful discussions around challenges and potentials of this notion and its operationalization.

L We write L with a common dance, which uses, interweaves, thus twirls diverse forms of collective choreography – from unison as a classicist form of dance, through rave, folklore, to decoding of visual representations of dance macabre and bio-geometry – patterns of organic movement, to invoke composite movement of the collective body.

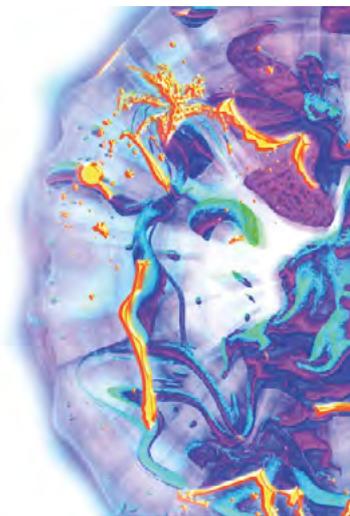

What and how does the space of (physical) togetherness mean to us in 2021? This work is the subject of dance, but also of invocation, constructed through shaping of the geometry of the affective pressure we find between bodies. This creates an experiential space for emotional and cognitive processing of increased intensity within the experience of community that we have witnessed over the last 620 days.

The performance is part of NAM program and is co-curated by Ana Dubljević, Viktoria Ilioska and Sonja Pregrad with Biljana Tanurovska – Kjulavkviski and organized by Lokomotiva.

The performance on MOT is part of the program collaboration project (Non)Aligned Movements, supported by the Ministry of Culture of North Macedonia, City of Skopje, and Creative Europe/European cooperation projects Western Balkans.

On 22nd of November in the frame of Mladinski Otvoren Teatar – MOT, Lokomotiva is presenting the performance "The Power of S". The work emerges as one of the results of the choreographic research "CO-series" by Aleksandar Georgiev which deals with the practices of co-existence through choreography and dance. He together with Dario Barreto Damas and Zhana Pencheva will be premiering their research about anal politics in front of Macedonian audience.

As the author says:

Hey, it's me. Behind. You haven't noticed me in a while. You never dared to put me in the spotlight. And I'm tired of being privatised, censored, covered. It's time for you to make me the protagonist. It might be the only way to continue. I want you to observe me, to judge me, to love me, to get awkward with me, to get lost in me, to tune with me, to nourish me. I need you to celebrate my power... more...

This month Lokomotiva will be the host of this year's choreographic research team of the (Non)Aligned Movements project: Viktorija Ilioska, Aleksandra Janeva Imfeld and Aleksandar Georgiev, and provide a space for their research work, public presentation, as well as their exchange with the local scene.

The three choreographers and dancers will be researching and rethinking the processes of self-governing and self-institutionalization, using the body "Connective Tissue" they have constituted as an organ as the decision-making body of the NOMAD network. By constituting an operative body within an already existing and functional network structure, where the invited curators will explore, think, rethink, dream, design, deconstruct and further discuss the format, functionality and operation of such a body inside organisational structures in the field of dance, choreography and performance.

The process will be publicly shared with the wider audience through the specific languages used in dance and choreography, at the Youth Cultural Center.

Co-teaching educational format shared by Viktorija Ilioska and Aleksandra Janeva Imfeld presupposes a teaching act as an act of learning, provides multiperspectivity and asymmetrical organization of the teaching processes and allows for (re)active teaching and learning experiences. The format abolishes the borders between theoretical and practical subjects and demands reflective teaching practices in educational processes.

It is a way of transferring knowledge where two, three or more teachers hold dance practices or workshops at the same. The rules of Co-teaching are specified through a score that is adaptable to a specific situation, students and the purpose of the specific task. The score might include the time, goal of the class, number of teachers, specific words used and other information that frames the experience as informative but fun and playful at the same time. It is up to the teachers to decide how they are going to frame the score and who is going to frame it.

November 17, 2021 - 18:00-21:00
 @ Upper foyer of Kino Frosina Youth Cultural Centre, Skopje, North Macedonia

This program activity is part of the Art Climate Transition project, and consists of lectures, discussions and research, in order to open up spaces for posing questions and mapping the role and the responsibility of culture and art in our society, their political action, and their relation to issues related to the erosion and appropriation of public goods and the environmental catastrophe. Furthermore, the aim is to find ways for these fields to be inspired by similar actions that oppose extractivist practices and the devastation of the public, i.e. advocate for the development and preservation of public goods and the environment.

The importance of the art practices and production in political action and activism (not just politics in art practice, media, or messages) has been central to movements such as Occupy Wallstreet, the Arab Colored Revolutions, or those in Southeastern Europe, the conservation movements, and even in one of the most common organized forms – the occupations (of theaters, dormitories, faculties and other public institutions).

Aleksandar together with Zhana Pencheva and Dario Barreto Damas would like to invite you to KULTRENING to share their fascination with dance and choreography through approaching the mechanisms of dance practice that he called "S-Hall".

"S-Hall", opens a poetic space where through dance we will meet the power of the sensitive, the sensual, the calm, the lonely, the slow, the meaningful, the passion, the shame, etc. It suggests an experience where power and strength will be redefined and celebrated as non-fixed structures, where narrative will have a different logic, where the kinetic and visual work will manifest the power of shame, the power of the sensitive, the power of the sensual, etc. The work will mainly focus on the movements and parts of the body that reveal the shame and change its meaning and perception. The approach opens a space for satisfaction in experiencing dance and choreography as a cinematographic memory in our own bodies.

ACT: ART, CLIMATE, TRANSITION // Other spaces program/ Ecological turn in culture: Imagining cultural professions beyond sustainable development and greening online lecture by Višnja Kisić and Goran Tomka

October 07 2021, 19:00 CET

On the lecture: In the wake of the Capitalocene and its severing consequences, the issue of humanity's relationship with more-than-human world asks for searching philosophical and existential trajectories beyond anthropocentrism and Culture/Nature divide. Instead of that, usual reactions to ecological crisis in the field of culture deals with reduction of CO2, energy consumption and other rather technical issues that go by the name of "greening". We propose going several steps further in rethinking the place of cultural policies and productions in the complex web of life than such "green", "sustainable" and "resilient" cultural policy and practice approaches entail. As they perpetuate anthropocentrism and Culture/Nature divide in understanding the world, which are at the heart of the ecological crisis, we don't see them as plausible answers to the rethinking of the Capitalocene. This is why, in this lecture, we conceptualise what would a deeper ecological turn in culture would mean. We argue that the cultural field has to engage more widely and deeply with current ecological issues.

workshops with Aleksandar Georgiev
& Darío Bardam

September 22-24, 2021 / 17:00 – 19:00

@ Kino Frosina, Youth cultural center
Skopje, North Macedonia

Lokomotiva is organizing THE ULTIMATE – the second open queer and drag workshop with Aleksandar Georgiev and Darío Bardam where we will have the opportunity to share forms and open new spaces of expression and growth of drag culture...

THE ULTIMATE – throughout this workshop we will spend time decoding the queer potentials of lip-synching, looking at it as a practice embedded in drag culture where disidentification and redistribution of meaning can take place.

What if we understand lip-synching as a practice of celebration and protest? What are the processes in which popular references help us to disrupt normative narratives? What are the choreographic poetics of lip-synching? The existing gap between the lip-sync performer and the actual song could be considered a container of potentials, what is it to spend time in there? How do these potentials get actualised?

We will tackle these questions in the form of cabaret/burlesque lip-synching numbers. Join us in a journey of realness, emphasis, dreams and insistence. The ultimate show is yet to be seen.

September 18 – 19, 2021, 12:00 – 14:30

Skopje, North Macedonia

Hristina Angelovska will give all participants the rare opportunity to work on developing their own dance choreography during the Kultrening workshop – Choreography in process. The workshop will be developed through segmented tasks set in a certain situation, guided by emotions and situations that awaken, develop, and end with choreographic sequences. The choreography will be based mainly on movements inspired by “Foco technique” and will be based on movements and exercises adapted to improve body elasticity and develop choreography. The workshop will develop through group and dynamic work, by forming two working groups divided by body movements and the way of thinking about creating choreographic units.

The planned program for the workshops starts with:

- theoretical explanation of choreography, movements, music, space (basic sequences).
- improvisation on a given topic that will introduce the participants to ways of creating choreography, concretization and memorization of movements.

September 15-17, 2021 / 17:00 – 19:00

During the workshop of “Choreographic miniatures” with Aleksandra Petrushevskaja, the participants will have an opportunity to work on developing their own choreographic miniatures. They will be introduced to a specific task and guided throughout the process. The task will include an object – an active participant in the process of creating choreographic miniatures. We will practice how to generate material while collaborating with an object and otherwise increase our sensitivity to something other than us.

Among the challenging questions that would guide us are: how can we become attentive to the object companion and perceive it not merely as a utility; how can we allow it to mold us, show us new routes we oftentimes avoid to take; how can we notice what else takes part in our alternation.

As the workshop unfolds, together and individually we will be looking into different ways of organizing and selecting material, in the meantime recognizing that the material has a right on its own.

August 23 – 27, 2021
@ Bunker & Forensic Plant Lab, Ljubljana, Slovenia

Lokomotiva as a partner in the European project ACT: Art, Climate, Transition invited Filip Jovanovski, a visual artist and cultural worker who works on socially engaged and interdisciplinary art projects that include working with different communities, cultures, politics and institutions – to be part of the residence in Ljubljana at the second edition of Summer Lab Program, organized by Bunker.

During the Summer Lab, held 23 – 27 August 2021 in Ljubljana, titled: “URBAN ECOLOGIES – TREES IN THE CITY”, the partners of ACT: Art, Climate, Transition project: invited artists, activists and participants from their own contexts, who were following the program created and hosted by Bunker and Forensic Plant Lab (SI), to share their experience and knowledge and present their work and artistic practices.

The Summer Lab #2 was inspired by archiborescence, a concept that shaped the vegetal cities of the comic books designer and architect, Luc Schuit-en. The project revolves around transforming cities into ecosystems, neighborhoods into forests, and buildings into inhabited trees.

The Art Climate Transition project is supported by the Creative Europe Program of the European Union, the Ministry of Culture of the Republic of North Macedonia and the City of Skopje in cooperation with the Youth Cultural Center.
